Telling Tales: using our voices and bodies to communicate our needs

All children, and some adults too, love telling tales, recounting their latest adventures with enormous enthusiasm to anyone who will listen. This workshop will look at how teachers can use this passion in their English Lesson time. We will look at how to use our voices and bodies to communicate in English in order to tell tales with just a touch of the theatrical.

Technology and Language Learning: an Integrated Approach

Introdurre gli alunni della scuola primaria alla conoscenza dell'uso delle nuove tecnologie al fine di dimostrare che, applicandole alla didattica della lingua straniera, presentano indubbi punti di forza: la valorizzazione delle dinamiche comunicative e l'attivazione di abilità metacognitive.

V Is for Vocabulary

This seminar will demonstrate how focusing on a lexical based approach in the ELT classroom can help students acquire the vocabulary they need to reach their goals. We know the important role of grammar but often students find it hard to express themselves because they struggle to find the right words or simply do not know them. Indeed without grammar very little can be conveyed, but without vocabulary nothing can be conveyed.

Death in the High City

Author Val Culley will present her new crime novel set in Bergamo, Death in the High City. The novel is the first in a series featuring detective duo Kate Butler, a freelance journalist, and Steve Bartorelli, a retired Detective Chief Inspector of Italian descent. Death in the High City is believed to be the first crime novel in which Bergamo provides the backdrop. The book is currently available as a Kindle edition, but can also be read on smartphones, tablets and computers using Amazon's free Kindle app. A good opportunity for students to become familiar with a new way of reading.

Grammar Time but not just Grammar

Without grammar we have only words and without grammar words cannot 'hang together' and don't have any real meaning or sense. If we want our students to speak English with a minimum degree of proficiency and be able to begin to express what they want to say, they need to have some grammatical knowledge. However, English grammar is much more than just learning lists of labels, tables and rules.

Seminar with Stephanie Holmes, Pearson Educational Consultant

From Stereotyping to Becoming Interculturally Competent

In this workshop we will reflect on national and cultural stereotypes and how we experience stereotyping individually. Secondly, we will think about how we evaluate attitudes in others and then distinguish stereotyping from more reasoned judgements about cultures. Finally, we will move on to discussing what the steps are and what we need to do to become interculturally competent in today's globalized world. The three activities will be taken from The Intercultural Resource Pack published by Cambridge University Press.

Seminar with Peter Anderson, teacher trainer SIETAR
